Julian Javier Foundation launches new website to aid its mission to provide free medical care for impoverished patients

San Anselmo, CA | July 6, 2012: The Julian Javier Foundation, which has provided thousands of needy people in the Dominican Republic with free medical care and a new lease on life, has now launched a new website to further raise awareness about its charitable activities and promote improved health.

The Julian Javier Foundation — with its new site online at www.julianjavierfoundation.com — was founded as a 501©(3) nonprofit organization in 2008 by Dr. Julian J. Javier, MD, FACC, FCCP, FSCAI. Dr. Javier is an acclaimed cardiologist and vascular specialist, and the director of the Julian J. Javier, MD Cardiac & Vascular Center in Naples, Florida — a Premier Center of Excellence, and one of the preeminent centers for cardiac and vascular care.

With a professional resume that puts Dr. Javier at the top of his field — board-certified in cardiovascular diseases, interventional cardiology, and internal medicine; a Fellow of the American College of Cardiology, American College of Chest Physicians, and Society of Cardiac Angiography and Interventions; articles published in the nation's most prestigious cardiovascular journals; keynote speaking engagements at over 100 international conferences; positions as Director of the Naples Cath Ventures, Founder and Director of the Naples Vein Center, Co-Director of the Master Venous Practicum; faculty positions at the University of Miami School of Medicine and NOVA South Eastern University School of P.A.; and memberships with a long list of leading associations — this leading physician has certainly shown his dedication to improving health. And he no doubt has enough to occupy his time and energy.

But Dr. Javier wanted to do more. He wanted to give back to the impoverished people in the country in which he was born — the Dominican Republic. So he founded the Julian Javier Foundation, named after his father, former St. Louis Cardinals All-Star Julian J. Javier, and set out to improve cardiovascular health and awareness in some of the poorest reaches of the Dominican Republic.

The foundation provides free medical care to needy patients who otherwise lack access to health services and treatments. To date, Dr. Javier and his foundation have treated over 3,000 patients for a wide variety of cardiovascular conditions.

“Our program has helped prevent amputation in many patients in the Dominican Republic,” Dr. Javier said. “Patients with ulcers not improved have made a full recovery thanks to the treatments we offer. Endovascular problems we address are: foot ulcers from venous problems and arterial, venous insufficiency, varicose veins of the legs and pelvis, thrombosis of the legs, pelvic venous congestion, angina, heart disease, edema of the legs and obstructions of the legs."

The foundation's new website, launched by the leading healthcare marketing agency Paramount/MD (www.paramountmd.com), will help to communicate the nonprofit's services to a wider audience, including both patients in need and potential donors and volunteers. The site will also help to promote awareness of heart and vascular diseases, and to educate patients about healthy living.

Dr. Javier's level of dedication and compassion seems to come standard with him and everything he does. But that doesn't make it any less of a rare find — one that his patients and colleagues, in the Dominican Republic and the U.S., regard with the utmost respect and appreciation.
